Federal Government Releases Draft "Underused Housing Tax" Legislation

The federal government provided its 2021 Economic and Fiscal Update on December 14, 2021. Amidst numerous new legislative measures introduced was the newly-proposed underused housing tax (the "UHT"). Draft legislation, in the form of a new Underused Housing Tax Act (the "UHTA"), was released after a consultation process that occurred in August and September 2021. Each follows a brief background provided in the 2021 Federal Budget. The UHT forms a part of the federal government's stated efforts to counter speculative transactions and undesired vacancy in Canadian residential real estate. Certain provinces and municipalities have implemented legislative measures aimed at curtailing real estate speculation and vacancy over the past six years. However, the UHTA is the first federal statute aimed at vacant homes and foreign owners. The following is an overview of the draft UHTA and a comparison to similar existing provincial and municipal measures. Read the full article by Zheting Su with Thorsteinssons LLP.

A Relief But Not a Reprieve: The CRA Postpones the New Federal Trust Reporting Rules

On January 14, 2022, the Canada Revenue Agency (the "CRA") announced the postponement of the new federal trust reporting regime that was set to come into effect for the taxation year ending on December 30, 2021. This news likely comes as a relief to many trustees who were grappling with the onerous new filing and disclosure requirements ahead of the upcoming T3 filing deadline for trusts with a December 2021 year-end. With this announcement, trustees can now safely file their 2021 T3 tax returns in accordance with the current rules and without any additional reporting obligations. However, this deferral should not be taken as a warrant to become complacent. Read the full article by Michael Scott, TEP and Jessica Dorfmann of Clark Wilson.

Amendments to the *Societies Act

For your convenience, Quickscribe has published a red text [early consolidation of the *Societies Act* as it will read when Bill 19 comes into force.]

On October 28, 2021, Bill 19 – 2021: *Societies Amendment Act, 2021* ("Bill 19") received royal assent in British Columbia, introducing amendments to the Societies Act (British Columbia) (the "Act"). This post outlines some of the notable changes. As at the date of this post, many of the amendments are not yet in force and will come into effect by regulation. The government of British Columbia has indicated that it will provide a notice period for upcoming changes. Bill 19 introduces the following changes in respect of a society's directors or senior managers. Read the full article by Shannon Tseng and Paul Jon of Alexander Holburn Beaudin + Lang LLP.

BCFSA Finalizes Information Security and Outsourcing Guidelines

In October 2021, the BC Financial Services Authority issued information security and outsourcing guidelines for provincially regulated financial institutions and pension plan administrators in British Columbia. Regulated entities should regularly review their outsourced services contracts and their information security and outsourcing policies, practices and procedures to ensure compliance with the guidelines and other legal requirements. ## How Long Is Too Long? BC Court of Appeal Interprets the Meaning of "Commercially Reasonable Best Efforts" in Obtaining Regulatory Approval

Contracts of purchase and sale for land are often conditional on obtaining regulatory approval. Such contracts will often include language requiring a party to use "best efforts" or "reasonable commercial efforts" to obtain the required approvals. Courts will apply different standards when assessing a party's efforts, depending on the specific language used in the contract. Parties, and their counsel, therefore, ought to carefully consider the contractual language they choose to describe such obligations. The need for careful drafting and prompt performance was recently highlighted by the BC Court of Appeal in Sutter Hill Management Corporation v. Mpire Capital Corporation. At issue was the interpretation of a purchaser's contractual obligation to use "commercially reasonable best efforts" to obtain regulatory approvals "as soon as possible". The Court found that, in the context, the purchaser had breached that obligation as a result of a delay of a matter of weeks, attributable to the purchaser's counsel. ## New Amendments to Auditor Oversight Rules Require Access to Audit Working Papers of Component Auditors

Changes to National Instrument 52-108 Auditor Oversight and its Companion Policy (the Amendments) require auditors that perform a significant portion of a reporting issuer's audit work to provide the Canadian Public Accountability Board access to audit working papers, particularly in foreign jurisdictions.

- The Amendments introduce the concept of the "significant component auditor", which is a component auditor that meets certain specified significance thresholds (as outlined below).
- A reporting issuer will be required to give notice in writing to a significant component auditor permitting the provision of access to the Canadian Public Accountability Board (CPAB) to its audit work if requested by CPAB.
- A reporting issuer will also be required to give notice in writing to a significant component auditor providing permission to enter into an agreement with CPAB governing access to its audit work (a CPAB access agreement) if this access is not voluntarily provided to CPAB upon its request.

New BC Rules for Contaminated Sites May Significantly Impact Businesses

On February 1, 2021, amendments to British Columbia's Environmental Management Act and Contaminated Sites Regulation [came] into force, changing the process for identifying contaminated sites in B.C. The changes will capture more contaminated sites and will impose more requirements on those who own or operate on contaminated land, including an automatic site investigation and reporting requirement. In this bulletin, we highlight the more significant changes and flag upcoming additional changes to the soil relocation regime that are expected later this year. #### BC Supreme Court Dismisses Aboriginal Rights-based Claim Against Private Owner of Historic Dam

In its January 7, 2022 decision in Thomas and Saik'uz First Nation v. Rio Tinto Alcan Inc., the British Columbia Supreme Court (Court) affirmed the plaintiffs' Aboriginal right to fish but denied their claim for relief against the private owner of a hydroelectric dam because it was constructed and operated strictly in accordance with applicable laws and permits. This case will have significant implications for owners and operators of historic infrastructure in Indigenous territory across Canada. ### First Nations Staking Claim over Mining in BC

When the Association of Mineral Exploration (AME) annual Roundup conference convenes next week, a good deal of oxygen may get taken up by what First Nations in BC are demanding: a complete overhaul of mining and minerals acts to give First Nations more regulatory control over mining. The First Nations Energy and Mining Council (FNEMC), backed by the Union of BC Indian Chiefs and BC Assembly of First Nations, issued a report Thursday [January 27] with 25 recommendations that, if implemented, would require a complete overhaul of BC Mines and Mineral Tenure Act to conform to the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous People (UNDRIP) and BC's own enabling act, the Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act (DRIPA). ### Skagit Park "Donut Hole" to be Closed

The BC government has reached an agreement with Imperial Metals (TSX:III) not to exercise its mineral exploration rights in an area between two provincial parks, commonly known as the Skagit "donut hole." The hole is an exclusion zone between Skagit and Manning Parks, where both logging and mineral exploration were permitted. It was left out of Class A park designation when the Skagit Valley recreation area was declared a provincial park in 1996. Skagit Valley Provincial Park merges with E.C. Manning Provincial Park, except in the donut hole area. In 2019, the Wilderness Committee raised concerns about logging in the area by BC Timber Sales, and mineral claims held by Imperial Metals. The Silverdaisy and Skagit watersheds are important habitat for salmon. Read the BIV article.

BC Judge Declines to Order COVID Travel Restrictions in Family Law Case

Despite a spike in COVID-19 cases arising from the spread of the Omicron variant, a B.C. judge has declined to place restrictions on a mother planning to travel with her son to Jamaica. The mother, who is not identified in a provincial court ruling, wants to take her son with her for a trip to an all-inclusive resort in Montego Bay in the Caribbean country so that the family can gather with her father, who is gravely ill. She told the court that it was important for her son to spend time with his grandfather, siblings and extended family, and said that she would take all the necessary precautions to address any COVID issues. #### Recent BC Court Decisions Highlight Benefits of Resolving Parenting Disputes Out of Court

What happens if two parents or guardians, now separated, share decision-making authority over their child but cannot agree on what is the best decision for the child? In situations where guardians reach an impasse, many believe that their only remedy to these issues is through the courts. While the courts can step in as needed, it is important to note that resolving family issues through the courts should be the last resort and that there are better options available to families navigating conflict. Read the full article by Chantal M. Cattermole and Caroline Camp with Clark Wilson LLP.

US to Reduce Tariffs on Most Softwood Producers, Raise Them for West Fraser

With its latest preliminary review on Canadian softwood lumber shipments, the U.S. Department of Commerce is indicating it will reduce tariffs for most Canadian producers but increase them for BC-based West Fraser. The department announced yesterday the combined countervailing and anti-dumping duties for most lumber companies will be reduced from 17.91 per cent to 11.64 per cent. West Fraser's new rate will be 13.09 per cent, a bump up from its current 11.14 per cent. Read the full article published by Canadian Forest Industries.

BC Watershed Security Strategy Could Put Province on the "Cutting Edge"

The BC government has rolled out the early stages of a water security strategy meant to protect the province's freshwater resources from drought, flooding and long-term shortages. The BC government has kickstarted a plan it says will protect the province's freshwater from climate change – step one, ask British Columbians to weigh in. #### Environmental Law Update: Moving Dirt In BC – New Rules

The Government of British Columbia is in the process of revamping laws around soil relocation with the objective of reducing the complexity of the existing rules, facilitating compliance, and limiting the amount of soil that ends up in landfills. To achieve these objectives, amendments have been proposed to the Environmental Management Act ("EMA"), the Contaminated Sites Regulation ("CSR"), and the Waste Discharge Regulation ("WDR"). The amendments to the EMA received Royal Assent in March 2020 and will come into force when the other regulatory amendments are finalized and adopted. Stakeholder feedback on the proposed amendments to the CSR and WDR are currently under review and final consideration is targeted for this year. Read the full article by Richard Bereti and Nicola Virk with Harper Grey LLP, published in the firm's Environmental Law Update.

Canadian Product Stewardship and EPR: A Review of 2021 and Beyond

Provincial governments (and non-governmental agencies) have been busy implementing various innovative waste management programs to divert waste away from landfills. In 2021, important changes were implemented across all product categories, including tires, batteries, electronic products, packaging and printed paper, beverage containers, and hazardous and special products. Key changes include: i) new programs in jurisdictions that formerly did not have programs, ii) expanded product lists for existing programs, iii) shifts from product stewardship models to extended producer responsibility ("EPR") models, and iv) expanded regulatory enforcement mechanisms and activity. ### BC Forest Watchdog Recommends Improving Forest Management to Protect Water

A report by the Forest Practices Board says that at least a third of the public complaints it has received since 1995 have involved the potential for forestry and range practices to affect water, including drinking water, the integrity of ecosystems, as well as public infrastructure and private property. It says that while the board usually found forest licensees were in compliance with provincial laws, gaps in legal requirements mean that forestry activities, including harvesting and the construction of forest service roads, can contribute to the risk of landslides, flooding and other water-related problems downstream. ## B.C. Supreme Court Declines to Strike Province's Class Action Claims to Recover Healthcare Costs and Damages Related to Opioid Epidemic

In August 2018, the Province of British Columbia (Province) commenced a class action on behalf of itself and other provincial and federal governments against approximately 50 pharmaceutical manufacturers, wholesalers, and distributors of opioid-related products (defendants). Through a variety of statutory and common law causes of action, the Province seeks to recover healthcare costs and damages since 1996 that resulted from the opioid epidemic – which the Province alleges was created by the defendants' wrongful conduct in their manufacture, marketing, distribution, or sale of opioid-related products in Canada.

On January 4, 2022, the British Columbia Supreme Court (Court) in British Columbia v Apotex Inc, 2022 BCSC 1 dismissed the defendants' various motions to strike the Province's claims (with some exceptions). The Court also granted the Province's motion to further amend its pleadings (which generally sought to clarify or provide further particulars to its existing claims, add the new claim of public nuisance, and add several new defendants). ## LABOUR & EMPLOYMENT

Labour and Employment News:

Check Out Time: Court Certifies Class Action for Dismissal of Hotel Employees due to the Pandemic

Over the past two years, there have been many unexpected changes at the workplace because of the COVID-19 pandemic, with many employers across various industries electing to implement mandatory workplace vaccinations, make unilateral changes to the job responsibilities of their employees or terminate some workers altogether. These changes have resulted in some affected employees bringing litigation against their employers. Recently, a group of hourly employees terminated for COVID-19 related reasons proposed to bring a class action proceeding against their prior employer. While class actions are not new in British Columbia, employment related class claims have been extremely rare. In this recent example, the BC Supreme Court (the "Court") certified the claim as a class proceeding, allowing a class of former hotel employees to bring a variety of claims collectively against their employer. In Latifi v. The TDL Group Corp., 2021 BCSC 2183 (Latifi), the court held that the plaintiff's allegation that the scope of the Competition Act should be expanded to regulate such clauses did not have a reasonable prospect of success, and the plaintiff's claim with respect to the Competition Act was accordingly dismissed. #### Time Out: British Columbia Arbitrator Dismisses Untimely Grievance

In TC, Local 213 and Wolseley Canada Inc ("Wolseley"), the arbitrator enforced a collective agreement's time limit clause to dismiss an untimely grievance.[1] This decision is a rare example of an employer successfully enforcing timeliness obligations to dismiss a late grievance and overcome the obstacle of having the grievance characterized as a "continuing contravention" (i.e., the employer's contravention of a collective agreement is continuous and thus the grievance is not subject to timeliness requirements). #### An Employee's Right to Disconnect After Hours

This month, Ontario became the first Canadian jurisdiction to require many employers to create a policy relating to an employee's right to disconnect after hours. This "right" is often understood as the right of an employee not to be expected to engage in business activity outside of working hours (e.g. answering work calls or emails). These new rules in Ontario were enacted pursuant to Bill 27, the Working for Workers Act 2021 and apply to employers with at least 25 employees. Employers have until June 2, 2022 to establish their policy if they had 25 employees on January 1, 2022. The required content for the policies has not yet been specified. ### LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Government News:

Important Local Government Legislative Changes Coming February 28

Last fall, we informed you about the newly introduced Bill 26 – Municipal Affairs Statutes Amendment Act (No. 2), 2021 which proposed a number of significant amendments to local government legislation including:

- a new requirement for local governments to consider developing or updating codes of conduct,
- the enabling of local governments to determine specific notice methods for public notice requirements, and
- streamlining the development approvals process.

The majority of these amendments, which impact the Local Government Act, the Community Charter, and the Islands Trust Act, did not come into force when the Bill achieved Royal Assent on November 25, 2021; however, a newly posted regulation states that February 28, 2022 as the date when most of the remaining sections of the Bill become law. It is worth noting that the sections of the Bill that add sections 113.1 Requirement to consider code of conduct and section 113.2 Reconsideration of decision respecting code of conduct will not come into force with the other sections on February 28 and are expected to be brought into law at a future (unknown) date by regulation. To determine what sections of this Bill are in force, have a look at the commencement information at the top of the Bill. This is a good opportunity to remind you that you can rely on the Keyword Alert tool to keep informed of any new or proposed legislative changes that deal with subject matter of your choosing. For example, if you had set up an alert to track the terms "variance permit" or "code of conduct" you would have been notified when this new legislation was first introduced. ### Time Limit Imposed on "Emergencies" under the Emergency Program Act

In the recent decision of Rosewall v. Sechelt (District of), 2022 BCSC 20, Justice Gomery of the BC Supreme Court has found the Province liable in nuisance arising from circumstances related to the exercise of statutory authority contained in the Emergency Program Act ("EPA"). In his decision, Justice Gomery concluded that the EPA contemplates an emergency as only being "of a temporary nature, as opposed to a usual and enduring state of affairs". The decision has potential implications for any local governments with states of local emergency that are regularly being extended. Under the EPA, a local authority may declare a State of Local Emergency ("SOLE"), which expires after 7 days unless extended by the Minister of Public Safety (the "Minister") or Provincial Cabinet. An extension allows for the SOLE to remain in effect for another 7 days, after which time it must then be renewed. Read the full article by Amy Coad with Stewart McDannold Stuart.

New Role for Local Governments Proposed under Accessible B.C. Act

The provincial government has advised that it plans to move forward with a regulation under the Accessible B.C. Act in September 2022 that would identify local governments as a prescribed organization under Part 3 of that Act. Local governments will be required to establish an accessibility committee, have an accessibility plan and have a mechanism for providing feedback on accessibility. Read the full UBCM article.

Lawsuit of the Week: Airbnb Goes to Court in BC to Block Release of Hosts' Names and Addresses

Short-term rental company Airbnb is going to court to block the release of identifying information behind its operators under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act. In a petition filed in BC Supreme Court on January 28, Airbnb Ireland UC claims the Information and Privacy Commissioner unreasonably ordered the City of Vancouver to release license numbers and addresses associated with short-term rental licenses in response to an FOI request by an unidentified "John Doe Requester." The petition names the City of Vancouver, the Office of the Information and Privacy Commissioner for British Columbia, the Attorney General of British Columbia and John Doe as respondents. #### Port of Vancouver Delays Start of Program to Eliminate Older Trucks from Drayage Fleet

A controversial Port of Vancouver program to remove older, more polluting trucks from its drayage operations has been postponed beyond its original Feb. 1 start date, but proponents are confident the delay will be minor. The Rolling Truck Age Program, a part of the port's updated licensing system for trucks operating there, originally called for trucks whose model years are 10 years old or older to be phased out starting Feb. 1. The goal was to have only trucks from model year 2012 onward at the port by June 1 (with some exceptions). Read the BIV article.

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY

Occupational Health & Safety News:

Fall Protection Violations Lead to Fine for BC Employers

WorkSafeBC has penalized three British Columbia employers for violations relating to fall protection rules in the workplace. Rainbow Siding Ltd. was fined $5,000. The firm was installing exterior cladding at a two-storey house in Surrey when WorkSafeBC found out about their violation. A worker walking on the sloped roof and no form of fall protection was in place, exposing the worker to a fall risk of about 6.1 m (20 ft.). "The firm failed to ensure fall protection was used, a repeated and high-risk violation," according to WorkSafeBC. Read the full article by Jim Wilson with Canadian Occupational Safety.

Raising Health and Safety Concern Real Motivation for Terminating Worker for "Poor Fit" During Probationary Period

A recent decision by the British Columbia Workers' Compensation Appeal Tribunal ("WCAT") upheld a Workers' Compensation Board (the "Board") decision that determined an employer's termination of a worker during her probationary period for "poor fit", was likely motivated by her raising a health and safety concern.

What Happened?

The worker was employed as a warehouse production worker commencing November 20, 2018. She was also the on-site occupational first aid attendant. On January 4, 2019, one of the owners of the company advised the worker that some of the warehouse staff were not correctly shutting down the machinery, including closing off the nitrogen cylinder safety valves. After this discussion, the worker suspected that her recent symptoms of burning eyes and a sore throat could be due to an exposure to nitrogen gas. On January 8, 2019, the worker reported her concerns to her supervisor and exercised her right to refuse unsafe work due to a potential nitrogen gas leak. She subsequently left the workplace as she felt unsafe.

BC Proposes Asbestos Licensing Rules in Workplace Safety Bid

Asbestos-related diseases are the "leading cause of workplace deaths in BC". The provincial government of British Columbia is proposing asbestos licensing rules under its Workers Compensation Act in a bid to improve workplace safety. Asbestos is a fibrous silicate mineral that can cause long-term health issues, and even deaths, after exposure. WorkSafe BC said that breathing in asbestos fibres can damage the lungs, causing serious problems including asbestosis, lung cancer, mesothelioma (a cancer), and pleural thickening (a lung disease). #### BC Human Rights Tribunal Dismisses Best Buy Mask Complaint

The BC Human Rights Tribunal has dismissed a complaint from an electronics store shopper who claims he was discriminated against for not wearing a mask. John Ratchford alleges Best Buy Ltd. discriminated against him on the grounds of physical disability by not allowing him to shop without a mask. Ratchford was maskless when he was stopped from entering a Best Buy store by an employee in October 2020. When asked to put on a mask, Ratchford told the employee that he had asthma and could not wear one. Read the BIV article.

BC Government Provides Guidance on LOTA Interpretation

The BC Government ("Government") recently provided updated guidance for interpreting the Land Owner Transparency Act, SBC 2019, c. 23 ("Act"), which came into force on November 30, 2020. Under the Act, any person or entity that will acquire an "interest in land" will need to make a disclosure filing called a transparency declaration, identifying whether the registered owner of the interest in land is a "reporting body". If the registered owner is a reporting body, it will be required to file a transparency report in addition to the transparency declaration, which will include certain information about the registered owner and the "interest holders," which are the individuals that are the indirect or beneficial owners of the interest in land. Alternatively, any person or entity that is a "reporting body" and already owns an "interest in land" will only need to file a transparency report disclosing the applicable interest holder information by November 30, 2022. For more information, see our article on the Act coming into force or our article on the public Land Owner Transparency Registry. #### What Happens When a Party to a Contract Involving Real Estate Dies?

What happens when an individual buyer or seller dies prior to the completion of a transaction involving real estate? This blog post discusses the complications that can arise in real estate transactions where there is a piece of land under contract and the individual seller or buyer dies prior to the completion of the transaction. At common law, a contract may be discharged or set aside on the ground of frustration where an unforeseen event renders the contract physically or commercially impossible to fulfill. Courts have considered whether the death of a party to a contract for a real estate transaction amounts to frustration of the contract, but have held that the contract will only be frustrated if there is some personal aspect of the deceased that was central to the contract. In a 1996 case called Butterfield v Todd Estate, the deceased had entered into an agreement with the plaintiff to jointly purchase a property and share the mortgage and maintenance payments. #### Can't Have Your Cake and Eat It Too: The Importance of Following Your Construction Contract Terms

It is all too often during a construction project that issues will arise with respect to delays or extras. Conwest Contracting Ltd. v. Crown and Mountain Creations Ltd., 2021 BCSC 2116, ("Conwest") affirms the importance of developers and contractors following their contracts to the letter in navigating these issues. If parties do not strictly follow the terms of the contract and disputes arise, courts may rely on party conduct as an interpretive guide – including pre-contract conduct that a party may not have fully considered when signing the contract. WILLS &amp; ESTATES
Wills and Estates News: Unconscionable Procurement:  Pinsonneault v. Courtney  The doctrine of unconscionable procurement is a helpful tool in challenging gratuitous transfers if the person benefiting has been actively involved in procuring property from the transferor. When it applies, the person who receives the benefit has the burden of demonstrating that the transferor had a sufficient level of understanding of the nature and effect of the transfer for it to be upheld. To succeed in a claim of unconscionable procurement, it is not necessary to show that the transferor did not have the mental capacity to make the transfer, or that she was subject to undue influence.
